Cambodia Data Called 'Ominous'

Washington, July 7 (Reuters). Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) said today that Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, had confirmed as approximately correct press reports that Communist forces now control large sections of Cambodia.

Mr. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he felt the situation in Cambodia was "very ominous" after Mr. Helms briefed the committee behind closed doors.

Mr. Fulbright told reporters that maps published in Washington showing Communist forces in control of large areas of Cambodia were approximately correct.
